C. E. Merkel, Bank Head, Takes Stand for Diagonal Parking

Editor's Note—The third of a series of interviews with local citizens is presented here in an effort being made by The Star to thoroughly acquaint its readers with the plans now being considered by city council to establish a new code of rules as a solution to the parking problem.

BY W. T. BUCHANAN,
Marion Star Staff Writer

Not so many years ago farmers and others who drove horse drawn vehicles were deprived of the right to hitch their horses on uptown streets in Marion when the old hitching racks, which once lined the curbs, were removed. The hitching posts were removed when the automobile came into popular favor.

For a time the removal of the posts threatened to result in a boycott of the city by farmers who resented the idea of being forced to pay a fee at a livery stable when they came to town. The boycott, however, never materialized.

Eliminated by Time

Today hitching horse-drawn vehicles has ceased to be a problem of any consequence. Another problem has taken its place, however, that is already far more serious. That is the problem of disposing of automobiles that are left idle on the city streets.

In other words it is the parking problem. Will the time eventually come when it will be necessary for the city to ban parking in the business district? This at least would settle the question, now causing considerable discussion, as to whether parallel or diagonal systems should be adopted.

COMMISSION PLANS HEARING IN JANUARY

Logan Gas Co. Files Protest on Valuation Fixed by Engineers

COLUMBUS, Dec. 19—The state utilities commission this afternoon announced it will conduct a public hearing, starting at 10 a. m., Jan. 7, next, relative to protests against the commission's tentative valuation of properties of the Logan Gas Co.

The state utilities commission at Columbus today announced that it will conduct a hearing early in January relative to protests against the commission's order, issued Nov. 19, last, placing a tentative valuation of $10,709,077, for rate-making purposes, upon the properties of the Logan Gas Co., "used and useful" in furnishing natural gas to Ohio consumers in non-ordinance cities, villages and surrounding rural territory.

Counsel for the Logan Gas Co. today filed a protest with the commission, claiming the commission committed a number of errors in reaching its decision, and, insisting that the commission should have placed a valuation of not less than $20,500,000 upon these properties.

A protest against the valuation placed by the commission upon the company's "general overheads" was filed a few days ago by attorneys for the various municipalities and rural districts which are protesting the application of the company for the commission's approval of a schedule of increased rates. The commission valued these overheads at approximately $637,000. Counsel for the protestants contended that this valuation should be reduced at least $200,000.

The Logan Gas company's protest was drafted by Attorney John E. Mullin, Kane, Pa., general counsel, and Attorneys Freeman T. Eagleson,

FAVORABLE REPORT ISSUED AT PALACE

Hope Continues To Mount as King Passes Restful Night

LONDON, Dec. 19—Another favorable bulletin on the condition of King George was issued by the royal physicians at 11:00 a. m. today.

The bulletin stated the king had had a restful night and that his condition continued slightly improved.

It was admitted in palace circles, however, that the progress is in reality "very slight." The renewed cheerfulness is based not so much upon the extent of improvement as upon the fact that each day's progress, however slight, is a "step in the right direction."

"It is necessary for this improvement to continue without a break for a number of days before complete confidence can be felt," a palace official told International News Service.

The next few days will be anxious ones lest the king suffer an unexpected relapse, thus losing the ground already won.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—The Kellogg multilateral anti-war treaty came before the senate assembly today along with the resolution of the irreconcilable group, proposing a public explanation of the American terms of adherence.

2.—That the treaty imposes no obligation on the United States to resort to coercive or punitive measures against any offending nation.

3.—That the treaty does not obligate the United States to the execution of any treaty to which the United States is not a party.

PROBE OF MURDER OPENED BY SLATER

Detective Starts by Questioning Widow; Two Women Sought

CANTON, Dec. 19—Ora Slater, Cincinnati detective who is heading the investigation of the perplexing Fearn-Heldman case, said today he would "start at the beginning" by questioning Mrs. Vernard Fearn at her home in the village of Waco, near here.

Fearn was shot down by a young woman on the front porch of his home at Waco the night of Dec. 6. A week later Mrs. Margaret Heldman, 21, of Lorain, confessed to her husband, Wilbour O. Heldman, that she committed the crime, according to the husband, because Fearn was threatening to break up her home by revealing a past incident in her life.

Heldman immediately took his wife in an automobile to surrender her to the sheriff at Canton, he says. Enroute, she shot herself, according to his story. She died in a hospital. Mrs. Fearn, who saw the woman who killed her husband, identified Mrs. Heldman's body as that of the murderess.

Heldman is in the county jail here, under $25,000 bond, as a coroner's witness to his wife's death.

Two young women, of Akron, reported to have been former friends of Heldman's, are sought for questioning. Slater is expected to go to Lorain during the course of his investigation but he refused to make any statement as to this today.

ALL SECTIONS OF U. S. IN GRIP OF INFLUENZA

No Effort Made by Public Health Service to Discount Seriousness

SWEEPING EASTWARD

Capital Officials Watch Ohio as Index of Epidemic

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—Virtually every section of the United States, excepting the northeast, was in the grip of the rapidly-increasing influenza epidemic today.

The public health service estimated the number of persons afflicted at more than half a million, on the basis of official reports showing about 100,000 cases for the week ending Dec. 15. Only about one-fifth of the cases are reported.

The epidemic is sweeping eastward and probably will reach the congested population centers of the Atlantic seaboard in from five to seven weeks. Extremely bad weather may hasten the climax of the epidemic.

Severe in Montana

Declaring that a large percentage of the entire population of the country sooner or later probably will have flu in some form, Public Health Service officials made no attempt to discount the seriousness of the situation. Millions will be affected, they admitted.

Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming is encouraged by continued advices from many sections that the epidemic is far less virulent than in 1918, when 500,000 people in the United States and 13,000,000 throughout the world died.

A discouraging message from Montana, however indicated that while the epidemic is receding as to number of cases, the disease is more severe with a higher mortality rate. This condition may be confined to a few localities, although the Public Health Service is apprehensive.

More Severe in East

Officials declared the epidemic probably will be more severe in the east owing to the crowding of population into small areas. Packed subways,

Total Mounts in Reports from State

(By International News Service)

Despite the cold weather now general over Ohio, the largest one-day report of officially carded cases of influenza were received at Columbus by the department of health today. According to Dr. C. P. Robbins, chief of the communicable disease division of the state health department, 311 officially recorded influenza cases were reported, bringing the total for the week to 685.

This figure is only approximately 25 per cent of the actual number, however, Dr. Robbins states. He holds that from past experience with the reports filed with him, less than one-fourth of the actual flu sufferers are reported by the attending physicians. He bases his claim on conditions found in various parts of the state by doctors connected with the health department who have been sent to investigate.

Coolidges to Spend Holiday Season at Plantation Off Georgia Coast

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—Christmas week and the New Year will, in all probability, find President and Mrs. Coolidge vacationing on Sapelo Island off the Georgia coast, about 50 miles to the crow flies from Brunswick.

Tentative arrangements have been made to accept the invitation of Howard E. Coffin, auto and airplane magnate, to spend the holidays on his elaborate island plantation. The departure from Washington will be made immediately after Christmas day, and possibly even on the afternoon of that day. The stay may extend over New Year's day, although that would necessitate the cancelling of the public New Year's reception, which has become almost a feature of the White House social calendar.

The host of guests to be entertained by him in calling President Coolidge south. On Sapelo Island, he can try his hand at hunting wild duck and geese, and even deer if he wants to. Of its charms, he can experience the thrill of deep sea fishing. Next door to the second home of his secretary, Mr. Coolidge can select a hideout for contemplating matters of serious import. Plans in connection with the visit are already under way, it was learned today.

The trip of the Coolidges will give them an opportunity to get away from the rigors of the winter season in the north, and to enjoy a genuine holiday vacation.

ONE DAY ONLY
THURSDAY, DEC. 20, 1928

Thousands are now regrowing their hair by following the Bald-No-More Method. Regrow your hair now!

The Bald-No-More Method for growing hair and eliminating scalp troubles was originated and perfected by Edward G. Yoot, a scalp specialist of national reputation; who has individually handled more cases of baldness and hair troubles than any man or organization of men.

Avail yourself of this opportunity. No matter what the condition of your scalp, consult the originator of Bald-No-More. About 90 cases out of 100 can regrow their hair. The other four are hopeless. If your case is hopeless you will be told so frankly.

A Bald-No-More treatment takes three minutes of your time. In the privacy of your own home you treat yourself. The cost is small. Results are seen in 10 to 30 days. Each day your hair grows stronger and thicker. You grow hair—not fuzz! Treat your scalp as you would any other organ of your body when sick. It will respond to proper treatment. Regrow your hair now! Avail yourself of this opportunity.

ussolini Takes Over His enth Government Post

ME, Dec. 19—Benito Mussolini today took over the try of colonies, thus assumeven of the 13 portfolios in the government and constituting himself a majority of the cabinet. He now holds the most important departments in his hands, having besides colonies the Departments of Foreign Affairs, War, Marine, Aviation, Interior and Corporations.

The posts held by other individuals are the ministries of public works, justice, finance, national economy, communications and public education. In official quarters it was said that experience showed that concentration of the various branches of public administration under one person was highly advantageous. It insured uniformity of direction and the avoidance of disagreements which might reach actual conflict when ministries are headed by different persons.

It was said Mussolini had found it especially useful to be at the head of all departments having to do with national defense. He thus had been able to coordinate the forces and make the army, navy and aviation groups a single unit.

The ministry of colonies was given up by Luigi Federsonia. His resignation was expected, as he was made a senator recently. It was understood that Mussolini wishes him to become head of the senate in the new legislature. Tomaso Tittoni, president of that body, is 73 years old, and had expressed a desire to give up the post and rest.

FREE WOMAN WHO POISONED CHILDREN

Mrs. Anna Kempf Pleads Guilty to Manslaughter and Judge Extends Mercy

CLEVELAND, Dec. 19—Mrs. Anna Kempf, 38, who confessed that she poisoned her three children, resulting in the death of the youngest, a three-year-old girl, late yesterday, was paroled in the custody of four friends for one year.

The action was taken by Judge Roscoe Hornbeck during Mrs. Kempf's third trial. The first trial resulted in a disagreement, the second was postponed when one of the jurors was stricken with influenza and the third ended today when Judge Hornbeck, sitting here by assignment from Lorain, O., accepted a plea of guilty to manslaughter.

Mrs. Kempf, by her own admission, mixed rat poisoning with chocolate ice cream and fed it to her three children, several weeks ago. She was despondent over poverty and unemployment at the time, she said.

"I believe that no jury would have convicted Mrs. Kempf of the charge against her," Judge Hornbeck said, referring to a first degree murder indictment.

"Here we have a contradictory element. A woman who has apparently poisoned her children and then attempted her own life; and now a woman who is not satisfied unless she is with her children."

Court attaches congratulated and several women kissed Mrs. Kempf when she was paroled.

CHICAGO TAKES 150 IN RAID, HOLDS 20

City Answers Challenge of Mafia Terrorists; Billy Ranieri on Stand

CHICAGO, Dec. 19—Twenty men rounded up in the police drive against the Chicago mafia extortion ring, were held today for questioning in connection with the murder of Ole Scully, state star witness in the Ranieri kidnaping trial.

More than 150 suspects were taken in custody in a score of raids throughout the Italian district here and in Chicago Heights last night. All but 20 were released after brief questioning. It was the city's answer to the challenge of the terrorists.

Meanwhile, the trial of three Italians charged with the kidnaping of young Billy Ranieri, son of a wealthy contractor, was resumed in criminal court under heavy guard. All spectators at the trial were searched for weapons and heavily armed guards were stationed about the room.

In addition to the unusual precautions taken in the courtroom, the home and persons of all the principals in the trial, including Judge Robert Gentzel, the jurors, prosecutors and state witnesses, were placed under guard.

The defendants are Angelo Petitti and Andrew and Tocy Cappelluno, the latter two, father and son.

The Ranieri child late yesterday took the stand and pointed out the Cappellanos as the men who received him and held him captive on their farm near Bourbonnais, Ill. Frank Ranieri, the boy's father, defied the threats of the extortionists by taking the stand and telling of his transactions with Petitti. He said Petitti threatened his life if he testified against the trio.

Albert A. Erskine, Studebaker Head, Sees Bright Future for Autos

By W. B. COUSINS

(Copyright 1928, by International News Service)

New York, Dec. 19—What is the outlook for the automobile industry in 1929?

It depends a great deal upon whether you look at it through the specs of the enthusiastic automobile manufacturer, or the business economist. Motor car manufacturers are proud that they are ready to turn out 5,000,000 cars next year; but the economists say: "Where will you sell them?" even with a vast expansion of the foreign markets, and the 3,000,000-car market at home, there is room for an embarrassing over-production, which has already had a bad effect upon other industries.

Albert R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker Corp., answering these questions for International News Service today, says there is no such thing as "saturation" of the automobile market.

High wages established by American industries during the past decades," said Erskine, "have given us the greatest mass consumption any country has ever enjoyed, and consequently, the home market of the United States is the biggest, richest and most coveted of any national market. The retention of this market by American industry is essential to our national prosperity.

WITH STAR STAFF

LETTERS TO SANTA

"DEAR Santa Claus,
North Pole.

"I want a Royal Flyer wagon, a Blue Bear sled, a sky Bird flyer, a Sandy Andy toy, a boy's wrist watch, a bee-bee gun, a pair of high Top scboes with a knife in the side, some screws for a erector, some more parts for a erector, some more little train lights and that's all. Thank you."

Such was the letter from an East Church st. boy sent to The Star recently by Santa Claus to prove to the people of Marion that the little boys and girls here still believe in him, despite disparaging comment from some of the know-it-all sophisticated youngsters.

This is just one of the many which the local postoffice has been receiving every day, all addressed to the grand old man of childhood days. Some of them are pitiful. One little girl reminded Santa that she had received nothing last year because of the death of her grandmother, but hoped that he would send her relatives next door a present. Not a word for herself, just worrying for fear someone else wouldn't be happy Christmas day. Letters like that are given to charitable organizations who investigate. If the people are found needy they are taken care of.

Several of the letters were written by baby hands that couldn't form letters, just up-an-down strokes expressing their heartfelt wishes.

VALUABLE GAS

A STRANGE gas, worth many times its weight in gold, makes possible those glowing electric signs of the type that is being installed at Hotel Harding. Thirty years ago neon gas was discovered by Sir William Ramsey, English scientist.

Neon is valuable for one thing and it does that well. When placed in a tube from which part of the air has been removed, the gas has the property of emitting a brilliant red glow as an electric current is passed through it.

Although the actual illuminating power of the neon type lamp is very low, the glow is visible for miles. In view of the fact that it must be used in tubes, American manufacturers have adopted it in their signs in the form of writing. To vary the color a few drops of mercury are placed in each tube resulting in a blue light being cast off. When this mercury-neon combination is placed in a yellow tube a green glow results.

Neon is obtained by chilling air to a temperature of 400 degrees below zero. At this temperature the air becomes a bluish liquid and the gas is given off. The gas is very rare, the proportion being 12 parts to a million of air. It costs about $10,000 a pound and there is only a thimble full of it in as much air as could be put in a railroad tank car.

POSTOFFICE PESTS

FOOLISH question No. 99,999,999,999.

"Please, do you have a package there for Mrs. Smith on Kelley av. It was supposed to come today and I just wondered whether or not to count on receiving it."

Foolish questions such as the above are received over the telephone many times a day at the local postoffice at this season of the year.

If the public could see the downstairs mailing department at the office and the mounds of mail sorted out to each route for delivery, and then stop to consider the hundreds of packages convenient for the foot carriers to deliver and the C. O. D. packages, they would think twice before propounding such nonsensical queries.

It is absolutely impossible for the clerks to sort over the mail for each individual house number, and another thing, the postoffice is efficient and all packages are delivered promptly upon receipt.

MOVING ALONG

EVERYTHING comes to those who wait, provided they wait long enough, so we are lead to believe by some old saying. It doesn't guarantee that we get what we are waiting for.

That may be the case in Marion's gas and telephone rate controversies. At any rate, it seems that after several years of waiting, something is going to happen soon on both of these historic clashes before the state utilities commission.

After many months of squabbling over various phases of both disputes, valuations of both the gas and telephone properties have been fixed by the commission and announcement of the new rate schedules is expected soon. This has all happened within the space of little more than a week.

But there are prospects of additional waiting. Appeals to the courts are practically certain and no one is farseeing enough to know when the final decision will come. In the meantime it will provide citizens with something to conjecture on and talk about.

Timely Tips About Pure Food Candy

We read in the Star the other day in Dr. Copeland's health column as follows: "The Quality of the milk and its abundance, will determine the quantity of lime and phosphorous without which there can be no dependable bones and teeth. "Lime starvation" is the cause of many of the dental defects from which we suffer. Without lime, there can not be good teeth. THE EVIL OF THE EXCESSIVE CANDY EATING IS NOT OF THE SUGAR UPON THE BODY. It comes from the fact that candy eating satisfies the appetite and keeps the child from taking milk and other mineral carrying foods. Big boys and girls, young men and women—all must have ceaseless supplies of minerals or else trouble is on the way. Not only bad teeth but other serious ailments, can be traced to the neglect of proper foods."

He may add "CHEAP BARGAIN COUNTER CANDY" because the good candy like the kind of candy that TENDER'S make contain TREMENDOUS ABUNDANCE OF THOSE MINERALS, for instance; our Chocolate has a certain amount of fats, cocoa butter, fats and butter fats; it has a large quantity of carbonhydrates, it has minerals, it has iron and lime.

The nuts used in our candies, are rich in proteins and fats, really one of the richest sources of Vitamine B, which is so necessary to build up resistance, and there is as much in nuts as is in cereals. One of the amino acids known as lysin, is found in large quantities in peanuts as a world expert states, and in fruits everybody knows what they possess. And now we may ask, do mothers know that when they are feeding their children Milk and Cream, also eggs, nuts and everything containing an abundance of Carbonhydrates, fats, minerals, and that during this flu epidemic, they must feed them plenty of caramels and chocolates assisting nature in its course and building up the resistance, so essential?

And one may ask, how many mothers know that they do deprive their children of all the benefits of such good candy that TENDER'S are making when feeding them or letting them eat "BARGAIN COUNTER" candies.

There are many teachers that do care for their pupils as they would for their own children, and they are buying their Christmas gift candies at TENDER'S.

Insist on TENDER'S MADE CANDY, and you battle diseases and epidemics.

"Eat one piece of TENDER'S caramel and you have a glass of milk."

For a bit o' sweet or a bite to eat exclusive and unique.

Boulder Dam Bill Awaits Signature of President

HOUSE CONCURS IN SENATE AMENDMENTS

Coolidge To Send Measure to Interior Department and Budget Bureau

CONFIDENT OF APPROVAL

Opponents of Proposed Law Say Court Battle To Halt Action

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—President Coolidge's signature was all that was needed today to write into law the Swing-Johnson bill for the building of the gigantic $165,000,000 Boulder dam project on the Colorado river.

The president, it was said at the White House, will send the measure to interior department and the budget bureau before he acts on it. With the house having concurred in senate amendments, the bill was to go to the White House as soon as the formalities of legislative branch, including signatures of the presiding officers, are completed.

Sponsors of the measure were confident that Mr. Coolidge would sign the bill. The president, as well as President-elect Hoover, had urged the building of the dam, although the former in his last message opposed any action to make it a straight government-operation project.

May Postpone Action

The possible objections of the president, backers believed, had been met by giving the interior department optional authority in the building of the dam and power plant and disposing of hydro-electric power.

Meantime, opponents contended that if the bill becomes a law a court battle will ensue which will definitely postpone action. Under the measure, Arizona is given six months in which to ratify a compact with New Mexico, California, Nevada, Colorado, Utah and Wyoming, before the project can be carried out without her assent.

Would Provide Water

The measure provides for the building of what is expected to be the highest dam in the world on the Colorado river between Nevada and Arizona, at Boulder Canyon or Black Canyon.

It is designed not only to control floods on the river, but to provide water for irrigation for domestic use in Southern California and other cities and provide hydro-electric power. The project is expected by supporters to pay for itself.

and Chester J. Gerkin, Columbus, representing the company.

It was also signed by Raymond Cross, Columbus, president of the company.

The company's protest contended the commission erred in the amounts, or proportion, of the tentative valuation, which it allocated to the respective non-ordinance cities and towns.

The commission, also, was charged with having erred in "arbitrarily using seven per cent for the general overheads" and in not fixing an amount not less than $4,393,754. The company's protest accused the commission of erring in disregarding the company's contention that a valuation of not less than $1,083,055 should be fixed as the company's "working capital," as of Dec. 31, 1924. The commission, instead, allowed five per cent.

"The order of the commission fixing said tentative valuation was, and is, unjust, unreasonable and unlawful," declared the company's protest. "The amount fixed therein was, and is, too low, inadequate and confiscatory, and constitutes a taking of respondent's (the company's) property for public use without just compensation, contrary to, and without due process of, law in violation of the constitution of the state of Ohio and of the United States, respectively."

Says Production Low

The company's protest insisted that the commission should have determined upon not less than $49,231,961 as the reproduction cost, less depreciation, of the company's "Ohio general system," as of Dec. 31, 1924. It claimed the commission erred in holding that any portion of the profits realized by the Preston Oil Co. from the extraction and sale of gasoline should be considered as revenue of the Logan Gas Co.

"The commission erred in failing to give preference to the hearing and decision of the question as to the reasonableness and propriety of respondent's (the company's) schedule of rates complained of and, in failing to determine said question without first announcing a so-called tentative valuation of its property, as moved and requested by respondent, as required by section 614-20 of the Ohio general code," the company's protest declared.

Failed To Allocate Towns

"The commission erred in failing to allocate to the non-ordinance towns a proper proportion of its property jointly used and useful for the service and convenience of the public in both non-ordinance and ordinance town," the protest continued. "The commission erred in arbitrarily allocating as between non-ordinance and ordinance towns the property of the respondent which is jointly used in such service and in failing to state, or in any manner disclose, the basis of such allocating.

The commission, the company's protest contended, should have allowed at least $4,500,000 as "the going concern value," of the company's "Ohio general system." The commission did not allow anything for "going concern value." But decided that its allowance of seven per cent for "general overheads" included the company's going concern value. The company took vigorous exception of this decision.

Attacks Position on Leases

The company's protest accused the commission of error in holding that the company's gas lands and leaseholds, comprising 349,533.55 acres, valued by the company at approximately $9,000,000 are not "used and useful" for serving the public. The protest objected to the commission adopting "unit costs" in making its valuation.

"The commission erred in holding that even though a market value were established by the evidence in the case, the commission is of the opinion that actual cost of these leases to the company is the only one which should be used for ratemaking purposes," the protest contended.

No Effort Made by Public Health Service To Discount Seriousness

theaters and large public gatherings contribute to the spread of the flu. Poverty, more prevalent in the large centers, also may accentuate the death rate.

Public health experts are still convinced that cooperation of local authorities and the public may keep deaths to a minimum. Complete advice already has been communicated to the public by the surgeon general's office as to the necessary precautions.

Available statistics indicated a heavy increase in influenza in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan. From this officials judged that the epidemic is moving eastward and to the north at about the same rate of progress as from the west coast. The wave of flu is moving southeast, too, although the severity may be mitigated by the warmer climate.

20 States Report

Twenty states reported yesterday and the remainder will be available today. Officials are watching for the Ohio report which will determine to a large degree just when the epidemic may be expected to strike the east. In New York and Pennsylvania flu reports are not required, excepting in New York City.

The 1928 epidemic is of the pulmonary or respiratory type, similar to that of 1918. It is said to be the most deadly since it is more likely to lead to pneumonia. One type affects the nervous system and another, commonly known as intestinal grippe, attacks the digestive apparatus.

Little Known of It

An investigation aimed at the origin of flu was made after the 1918 epidemic, but experts did not succeed in isolating the germ. Little more is known of flu than the common cold, the most prevalent of America's ailments.

Both public and private health experts have launched a renewal of the flu investigation and with the background of data obtained a few years ago hope to be successful in discovering methods for at least checking epidemics.

The spread of the influenza epidemic is continuing steadily southward. Included in today's report to the state health department were cases from as far south of Vinton county. Others were from counties located in the central section, considering north and south boundaries only. They were Darke, Clark, Franklin, Madison, Union, Coshocton, Fayette and Champaign.

tions have been called off. Reports from the schools that absentees reached the 102 mark, is said to be the reason for the move on the part of officials.

Influenza caused the closing of the public school at Allen Center, near Marysville today, a report from there states.

The board of education ordered the school closed until after the holidays. Several hundred cases of the flu have been reported in Union county, but the Allen Center school is the only educational institution in the county closed on account of the epidemic.

Reports from Morrow county state that there are only 53 cases of the disease in the entire county. Schools there will remain open until Friday, when the Christmas vacation begins.

Game Called Off

The order of the Kenton board of health closing the public and parochial schools there has resulted in cancellation of te Kenton-Ada basketball game that was scheduled for tonight. Whether the games scheduled for the Christmas season will be played will depend on conditions at that time, officials stated today.

LEESVILLE MAN STRUCK BY CAR

Fractured Skull and Other Injuries Cause Death of Henry Hipp

BUCYRUS, Dec. 19—A fractured skull and other injuries sustained when he was struck by an automobile driven by a Crestline man about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, caused the death of Henry Hipp, 83, of Leesville, at 7 o'clock last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Grant Schaber, at Leesville.

The accident happened as Mr. Hipp was returning to his home from a store in Leesville and according to witnesses, the aged man stepped in the path of the machine. The driver of the car was absolved from any blame in the accident.

Mr. Hipp is survived by his widow, Mrs. Marin Wilson Hipp, and the following children: Melvin and Freeman, of Crestline; Cleve, of California; Harley, at home; Mrs. Gertie Franks, of Galion; Miss Bertha Hipp, of Iowa, and Mrs. Schaber. One brother, F. J. Hipp, and three sisters, Mrs. Emma McDonald, Mrs. Cora Chesbro and Mrs. Elizabeth Hipp Shealy, of Bucyrus, also survive.

AFTER SLAYER

Detective To Return Youth to Scene of Murder

BUFFALO, Dec. 19—Charles Rudloff, a detective from Bradford county, Pennsylvania, arrived here today with extradition papers for the release of Arthur Leonard, 18, who confessed to the murder of Mrs. Samuel Jones, wealthy widow of Herrickerville, Pa. Leonard, now serving a 30-day sentence in county penitentiary for illegal possession of fire arms, will be turned over to Rudloff tomorrow. Leonard will be taken off the train before it reaches the county seat to avoid possible lynching, according to Rudloff. Feeling against the young murderer is very intense in Pennsylvania, Rudloff said.

PROBE THEATRICAL WHITE SLAVE RING

Federal Investigation May Involve Broadway Employment Agencies

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—Half a dozen or more Broadway theatrical employment agencies catering to stage struck girls may be involved in the federal investigation of a white slave ring, it developed today. The probe is a sequel to the arrest of Major Robert C. Kent and four young women in a raid on Kent's eighteen-room roadhouse at Gleuham, N. Y.

Assistant United States Attorney George T. Mintzer is investigating reports that no less than 50 young girls passed through the house during the year. The girls were lured there through advertisements for night club "hostesses," witnesses told the federal grand jury.

Investigation leading to Kent's arrest was started by a complaint from a Wisconsin minister that his daughter was lured to the roadhouse, known as the "Bradford house," and kept a prisoner for three weeks.

Kent, a well-groomed man of middle age, collapsed in the prisoners' pen while waiting to go before the grand jury. He declared that the charges against him were a "frame-up" by federal agents in retaliation for charges of extortion he placed against one of them last spring. He is accused of conspiracy to violate the Mann act.

Mary Powell and Alberta Edelhute, two of the young women seized in the raid, have appeared before the grand jury, and the other two—Mrs. Florence Murray and Chiquita La Vonne, were expected to appear before the jury today.

NEXT DISPUTE MOVE UP TO CONFERENCE

Pan-American Arbitration Committee Faces Difficult Task

BUENOS AYRES, Dec. 19—The next move in the Bolivian-Paraguayan territorial conflict is up to the Pan-American conference on conciliation and arbitration in Washington.

There are high hopes here today that there will be no further clashes and that the two republics will move all troops from their frontiers except the normal border guards.

It is admitted that a settlement will be long and difficult owing to the firmness of both the Lapaz and Asuncion governments in their territorial claims.

According to belief in diplomatic circles the Kellogg committee, appointed by the Pan-American conference to mediate the dispute, will send communications to Bolivia and Paraguay outlining a plan for settlement negotiations.

It is possible that a special mediation commission will be appointed, but whether the negotiations will be carried on at Washington or in some neutral South American capital is not known.

SAY FORMER MAGISTRATE MARKET SHARK VICTIM

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 19—"Hard Boiled Squire" Albert Nisbet, Louisville's blind former magistrate, who is accused of being short more than $40,000 in his accounts as treasurer of the building fund of the Baptist church, was the victim of a "stock market shark," his friends declared today. Nisbet's losses due to "playing the market" may total more than $150,000 in all, investigators declared today, and his total extractions from the church's funds may reach a total as high as $100,000, the authorities said.

Daily Proverb—"The scraping hen will get something, the crouching hen nothing."

A new Ohio record of 727 hours for Marathon dancing has been established in Canton. It's simply impossible to keep a good town down.

After waiting 208 days to be captured, Joe Saltis, best-known beer baron in Chicago, surrendered to the police. At that rate it would take the police up there something like 208 years to capture an ordinary, nondescript bootlegger.

Having striven in vain for several months to interest the city service department in the matter, we can't help feeling that it would be mighty fine were Santa Claus to leave some gutter crossovers to replace those which are a menace to the good people living out our way.

If we get the news from Washington correctly, the vote in the senate on the Boulder Dam bill broke all records in the matter of log-rolling, marking the payment, at public expense, of more political debts than ever before were wiped out by one measure in the history of the legislative branch of our government.

The people of Afghanistan have stood for a lot of innovations since King Amanullah and his beautiful queen, Soulya, returned from their European trip, but when Amanullah ordered his soldiers to shave off their whiskers, that was the straw that broke the camel's back, and Amanullah and Soulya had to take refuge in a fortification to escape the soldierly wrath. The Afghans manifestly take their personal liberty seriously.

Thirty girls discharged by the telephone company in Milan for breaking its rule against the marriage of its operators have been reinstated through the influence of Mussolini. It certainly took nerve on the part of the telephone management to retain a rule conflicting with the dictator's decree for more children.

Had it not been for the votes of two Democrats, Reed of Missouri and Kendrick of Wyoming, the treasury-postoffice appropriation bill, carrying the conference committee's substitute of $13,500,000 for prohibition enforcement for the $274,627,384 appropriation for that purpose voted by the senate last week, would have been sent back to conference, as it passed by only three votes, one Republican and a couple of renegades having voted with the Democratic minority. From which it may be seen that that Republican "majority" in the upper house of congress is largely theoretical.

Let Us Hope It Was Legal.

Federal officials in New York City are reported as admitting that, if the James B., captured a few days ago by the coast guard vessel Cuyahoga, was seized in free waters, as claimed by her owners, there is the possibility that international complications may ensue, as she permitted the coast guard to board her only after a couple of shots were fired across her bow. When seized, she was flying the British flag and carrying a cargo of liquors estimated to be worth $400,000 and papers showing her bound from Halifax to a port not in the United States.

It is the contention of the seized vessel's owners that she was boarded forty miles off the New Jersey coast, beyond the limit of seizure established by international agreement. The coast guard claims the vessel was captured well within the territory where liquor ships are contraband. That there may be some question of the legality of the seizure is made evident by the fact that no effort has been made to destroy the liquor which is yet aboard the vessel and the crew of ten men, though taken off to be questioned, were not placed under arrest.

The legality of the capture will depend largely on what the speed of the seized vessel may prove to be when given an official test, for the confiscation agreement allows a ship to carry liquor beyond that distance from the shore which the ship can cover in an hour.

The 125-foot Cuyahoga was making twenty-five knots when the James B. pulled away, despite her heavy load, guardsmen say.

It is greatly to be hoped that the seizure may prove to have been legally made, for an illegal seizure, following the shots across the bows, would but serve to add to a certain amount of resentment which has been made manifest in Canada over the somewhat indiscriminate shooting by coast guardsmen over Canadian waters in the Great lakes.

It would be an awful price to pay for such prohibition enforcement as we now have should the activities of our coast guardsmen break the friendly relations which so long have existed between this country and Canada.

Christmas Eve Lights.

We confess that we are just a bit proud of the manner in which this city celebrates Christmas Eve. Most cities give emphasis to the celebration of New Year's Eve, but here in Marion we give more attention to making Christmas Eve notable.

There's a centuries-old custom in Europe of displaying Christmas Eve lights. There the householder places a light in a window, the custom having a double significance. The light not only typifies the great star which led the wise men of the East to the manger in Bethlehem, but also is significant of the cheer which abounds in anticipation of the world's greatest holiday.

The custom was brought to our shores early in our history as a nation, but for some reason fell into disuse. However, it was inaugurated here in Marion long years ago and has developed with the passing years until its observance has become general throughout the city, homes and business places alike showing lights within, with blinds raised to let their rays shine out and spread their cheer over streets and avenues.

In early days, the lights were necessarily those of the times—oil lamps and candles—but the development of electricity has added almost infinite variety to the local displays on Christmas Eve, making of the city a scene of beauty. In some homes but a single window light is displayed. The next home may show a light in every window. Some homes show plain lights, some colored. Christmas trees glow in colored lights and tinsel both within residences and on porches and lawns. And when the landscape is snow-covered, the beauty of the display is many times multiplied, each tiny crystal reflecting the lights and intensifying the charm of the scene.

Our city is beautiful in the fresh green of springtime; it has special charm in the bloom of June, but to us it is never so appealing in its appearance as when we see it snow-covered amid the myriad lights of Christmas Eve.

The couple found murdered last week near a deserted Long Island bungalow have been identified as a young New York gangster and his wife who "knew too much" about the doings of a hold-up gang of three under arrest in the metropolis, who secured an adjournment of their trial that they might have opportunity to put the two possible witnesses out of the way. The New York criminal world seems to have acquired its full share of the methods so popular with the criminal world of Chicago.

Musical Beans.

A woman out in Santa Barbara, California, has good reason to know that in this day and age you can't tell what's liable to happen. Last Sunday, when she grasped the handle of a pan in which she was boiling beans on top of her electric range, she intended simply to move the pan to the other side of the range. What she really did was to turn on a radio program.

First came the voice of the announcer, and then the notes of "Ave Maria" came simmering through the beans. Knowing that there wasn't any radio outfit in her home, and satisfied that the bean pan was responsible for the music, the good housewife waited until the selection was ended and then, as an experiment, stirred the beans vigorously. The result was the breaking of a big chorus into a hunting song, which was followed by a crooning plantation melody.

Radio experts do not profess to be able to explain the phenomenon with certainty, but point out that radio music has been heard in hot-air shafts connected with electric furnaces, and they hold that it may be possible that the bottom of the pan acted as a diaphragm and reproduced a radio program picked up inductively by the electric power line.

Having gone this far, an awful thought comes to us. Can it be that this Santa Barbara story has been put out as a bit of selling propaganda by some electric range company?

Los Angeles has organized a major disaster emergency staff, evidently realizing that another big fire is liable to do damage to California at almost any old time.

A Washington correspondent tells how the speculators are making the prices of the desert lands even as far as twenty-five miles away from the site of the proposed dam in the Colorado river bloom like a rose. Well, hasn't it been understood all along that the Boulder Dam improvement was for private profit at public expense?

The presentation in Boston of the Harvard play, "Fiesta," the cast of which includes several Boston society girls as well as college youths, has been held up as indecent by the mayor of that city following its showing at Cambridge, where some of its lines shocked both townspeople and police. Sometimes one just about has to have doubts about the value of the higher education of today.

Vagrant Verse.

POSE'R.

Oh, go away and leave me.
I am tired of your faces.
Leave me, I am weary
Of every sound and sight.
I want to be alone
In the quiet and the darkness,
I want to be alone
In the stillness of the night.

Here in the garden
The ailanthus whispers.
I can not hear the green words,
Your laughter is so near.
I can not hear the bright tune
The silver rain is making.
Go away and leave me
To hear what I would hear.

I am weary and aweary
Of answering and asking;
Wearied out with smiling
And saying happy words.
I want to lay me down now
And close my eyes and listen
To the ailanthus murmurs
And the sky full of birds.

AMONG HIS SOUVENIRS.

The Diet of Today.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

One of the gratifying things about modern life is the increasing interest in the preparation of food. I saw a picture the other day, a photograph of a great multitude of women actually crowding Carnegie hall in New York City. It was a group of home-makers attending a cooking school. We hark back to "them times"—the pioneer days "when men were men and women were cooks." Why go so far?

There are just as good cooks today as there were in Revolutionary times. As a matter of fact, the food we eat today is, on the average, far better than it was then. It is better in original quality and it is prepared better.

What saved the pioneers from chronic indigestion was the hard manual labor they performed. They sort of "worked off" what they consumed.

Do not misunderstand me. There have been wonderful cooks for ages past. No doubt many a family in olden times had splendid food. But the world was not delivering its riches then and there was not the multiplicity of dishes we enjoy today.

Fried foods, rich gravies and an over-supply of meat, made combinations which only powerful digestions could handle. Wild game, coarse vegetables and the cereals in natural form, made the body of the typical meal.

There isn't a food in the list that isn't good, of course, but there is an over-abundance of roughage in it for the modern way of life. Without strenuous exercise, such as our fore-fathers and fore-mothers took, the digestive organs would rebel.

We have the right to criticize the modern foods for exactly the opposite reasons. The trouble with our present-day eating is that many of our foods are "denatured." That is, the outer coverings and fiber are removed in too great quantity. In the effort to make them attractive to the eye, some of our foods are robbed of their most important elements.

Common sense should be applied to the preparation of food. Unfortunately, however, common sense is not quite enough. That is the reason why such gatherings as the Carnegie hall convention are important. Experts teach the scientific reasons for this or that combination of foods, as well as this and that process of preparation.

We must not sneer at "new-fangled" ideas. We must investigate these suggestions and apply such of them are likely to improve health.

Routine methods, methods which we have used for years, are difficult to change. We don't like new things. We even resent the very suggestion that our way of doing things is the wrong way, or if not the wrong way that it can actually be improved. Alas! Many of the things we have done always, are the wrong things to do.

Please, don't get mad at me when I suggest that it is a good thing to consult the cook books and see if some better recipes can be found. Let us not despise the new idea.

Twenty Years Ago.

This day was Saturday.

The Marion County bank was located in its new home, Center and Main streets, in quarters formerly occupied by Kleinmaier Brothers.

Hamilton R. Curry, Erie detective, accused of killing J. W. C. Jackson, a farmer, was bound over to the grand jury by Mayor Scherff on a second degree murder charge.

The tag day collection, conducted in the city to raise funds for the benefit of the poor of the community, fell far below expectations. It was estimated that the collection would total $225.

J. F. Brundige was elected president of the Marion county farmers' institute at the closing session held in Waldo.

A theatrical company, reported to be made up of amateurs from Galion, staged the first act of "The Peddlers' Parade" at the opera house in Agosta when the audience became dissatisfied and demanded the return of their ticket money. Their demand was met and the floor of the opera house was cleared, the remainder of the evening being taken up with a dance. Members of the show company watched the dancers from seats on the stage. Miss Dale Horton of Agosta was unable to collect $3 for her services as pianist in connection with the show and took a mandolin belonging to one of the troupers as a substitute for her money.

WHERE ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN.

Daylight gang wars on crowded streets, noontime robberies of jewelry and cigar stores, shooting into passing motors from ambush—to all these things New York has become accustomed. But even in this day of violence and lawlessness it is still difficult to believe that a man could be kidnaped, taken into a house in a populous neighborhood and forced the next day to draw $14,000 from a savings bank and pay it over to two men who stood behind him at the teller's window with guns which they held in their pockets pressed to his side. Another man has told the police that he was kidnaped and held prisoner for twenty-six days, while his captors endeavored to obtain $100,000 for release, but as yet has not confirmed a report that his friends finally ransomed him. Other evidence is accumulating to establish the existence of a kidnaping organization which conducts business as calmly and almost as openly as if its business were perfectly legitimate.

The kidnaping of children has long been a favorite device of professional criminals. But it is only recently that they have taken to making prisoners of grown men and sequestering them safely until they or their friends are forced to pay for their release. If these stories had not been told at police headquarters or in the grand jury room and had not been followed in one instance at least by an indictment for extortion, it might be thought that they were elaborate press agent schemes to advertise forthcoming motion picture thrillers. But the brazen effrontery of the gangs behind the bootlegging business seem to have emboldened resident criminals to go to any length of daring. O. Henry believed that anything could happen in his Bagdad-on-the-Subway. Were he alive today he would not have had to resort to invention to support his theory.—New York Herald Tribune.

SCIENCE AND THE SENSE OF SIN.

It is not true, as some persons might be led to think by recent discussions alleged to be more or less scientific, that men of science generally have discarded the conception of sin, and that rational theology will have to adjust itself to radical conclusions on the part of psychology, ethics and sociology in dealing with the phenomena long condemned as sinful. Despite all the discoveries of modern science, the sense of sin persists and is certain to continue to persist. That sense is an aid to and a condition of social progress.

Sin is not merely another and more exact name for antisocial behavior. It is a name for a distinct thing—namely, the consciousness of a regrettable departure from a desirable standard, of a lapse, a violation of one's duty to his own truer and worthier self. One is ashamed of sin, because one feels that one has wronged oneself as well as others.

The average human mind or heart is a theater of war; all sorts of emotions, passions and desires battle there for supremacy. Dr. Johnson said there were seven men in every human being. Modern science confirms this view of multiple personality. When the lowest prevails, the higher, better selves feel aggrieved and degraded. The sense of sin is the sense of having suffered this degradation. It helps one in the effort to resist evil and temptation, to live up to one's highest standards.

Society provides punishment for certain offenses, but the sense of sin in one's own breast is perhaps even more important than punishment as a preventive of antisocial behavior.—Chicago News.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Dec. 19—No other human-beings are quite so self-centered as the denizens of Broadway. It lives, moves and has its headaches between Columbus circle and Herald Square. To its fortunate wayfarers it is the "Main Stem of the Universe," the "Big Apple" and the goal of earthly travels.

Just this morning one of the sophisticates in commenting upon a bit of trivarata in this column observed: "But Broadway has known that for weeks." It was suggested a little coldly that might be so, but perhaps the rest of the world did not.

"Who cares about the rest of the world?" was the tart rejoinder. And he was sincere. The favorite laugh for the White Way rounder concerns the white-soxed gentleman from Okmulgee who is rolled for his wad in the "take-joints" or makes a first payment on Brooklyn bridge.

To the sensible New Yorker Broadway is an interesting section, just as Fifth avenue, the Bowery or Lenox avenue, but for the little minds who cling to it like barnacles it is the top of the world—the axis upon which the sphere revolves.

There is a good fellowship on Broadway as expressed in its "benefits," but not in the maudlin grouping together in a speak-easy back room to sing "Dear Old Pal of Mine," with moist eyes. But it is the latter sentimentality about which they like to prattle.

Broadway is glib with its "He was a good fellow when he had it," but is looking out the window when some "good fellow" comes a cropper. Arnold Rothstein was a good fellow. The legends of his half world charity were profuse. But one lonely carriage followed him to his last resting place.

Yet it is amazing how many are victims of this strange Broadway hypnosis. The zeal of the Californian for his climate is in no wise comparable to the Broadwayite for his Broadway. He is thoroughly convinced the rest of the world, as the song has it, is only camping out.

Paul Whiteman has shown what diet can do toward hastening "the way of all flesh." A year ago the celebrated bandmaster with his covey of chins was barely able to waddle about. In Paris about that time, I tried to pick him up in one of those kitten powered taxis. He could not get in the door. His ballooning was so rapid, new clothes had to be made each month. Then he went on a diet. His breakfast was a cup of black coffee and a thin slice of wheat toast, his lunch a bowl of soup and his dinner a small piece of meat and two vegetables. He walked five miles daily in this valiant struggle he lost ninety-three pounds and is now as fit as his well-known fiddle. But always hungry.

The "celebrity dinner" is receiving a new break. Once upon a time an agency made a goodly sum engineering them, but with prohibition people began to do their drinking at home. Invitations were sent out and only polite regrets came back. This winter there have been a number of them. Curtailing speechmaking to five minutes per person may have had something to do with the restoration.

Something hotsy-totsy in hat snatchers is introduced in the banquet-room at one of the new hotels. A man and woman are in charge. He is in full evening dress with white gloves and she is arrayed in a smart evening frock. It becomes almost impossible to resort to dime tipping in presence of such elegance. Will Rogers was so overcome he merely shook hands and invited them to tea.

The man who invented the hat check system, by the way, is John Loffler, who introduced it at Tony Pastor's in 1897. But what is more remarkable, the gentleman is still alive.

Jupiter in the Movies.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Everybody who has watched the planet Jupiter, for an hour or two with a telescope must have noticed how the rapid rotation of the great belted globe manifests itself by a perceptible coming into view of objects near the eastern border and a corresponding passing out of view of objects near the western border, while in the central parts of the disk all markings show a similar advance. Since Jupiter makes a complete rotation on its axis in a little less than ten hours, its rotational motion is considerably more rapid than that of the hour hand of a clock, which makes one complete circuit in twelve hours.

Manifestly, a series of consecutive photographs of Jupiter, taken at short time intervals, and exhibited in the manner of a motion picture, should show the great planet visibly rotating on a screen. This effect has recently been produced with such a series photographed by Professor W. H. Wright with the great Lick telescope, and arranged on a cinematograph film by Dr. C. E. K. Mees. The photographs were taken about a minute apart, covering a complete ten-hour rotation of the planet. The resulting motion picture was first presented to an audience last summer in London at a meeting of the Royal Astronomical society, and the effect upon the assembled astronomers was electric.

They beheld the giant planet of the solar system rolling upon its axis before their eyes, as realistic in its motion as a movie actor. The beforehand knowledge that such an effect must necessarily be witnessed in no way detracted from the startling nature of the exhibition. It was as if the Jovian globe had been brought down to earth for experimental examination and caused to spin many times faster than its normal rate, just as a growing plant may be presented on the screen so accelerated that its increase of size and changes of form take place before the spectator in a few minutes.

It would be worth while to apply this method to other heavenly bodies. The planet, Mars, for instance, makes a rotation on its axis in about the same time as the earth. By a suitable series of photographs taken on two or three consecutive nights a motion picture of Mars could be made that would be no less interesting and instructive than that of his great brother, Jupiter.

The mystery of Venus's rotation might also be investigated by a similar method. The latest observations have shown that Venus turns only three or four times on her axis during one revolution around the sun. The real length of this period might be more certainly determined by a motion picture integrating the successive appearances of her surface as it slowly turns, and making the motion more evident by the effects of the artificial acceleration. The addition of motion to the view of the more or less veiled disk might well result in an effective clearing away of the obscurity.

Similar motion pictures of the rotating sun would surely reveal more clearly the law of the multifold rotation of that great body, and of the interrelations of the spot zones on either side of the equator. The sun, as a whole, makes a single rotation on its axis in about twenty-five days, but in latitude forty-five degrees the rotation is about two and a half days longer, while in intermediate latitudes the period increases as the equator is approached. The spots and groups of spots also have independent motions, which should be more clearly revealed in a motion picture. In short, the application of the cinematograph to the heavenly bodies seems full of promise. — Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

The readers of this column are entitled to more than a running comment on men and manners, life and times. Today at least they will get something better than that. Let's go for a few minutes to the library and treat our minds to thoughts that build.

The first from Victor Hugo: "In the twentieth century war will be dead, the scaffold will be dead, hatred will be dead, frontier boundaries will be dead, dogma will be dead; men will live. He will possess something higher than all these—a great country, the whole earth, and a great hope, the whole heaven."

LOCAL MAN LOSES SUIT FOR $22,500

Verdict Returned for Defend- ants in Action Brought in Bucyrus

Directed verdict in favor of the defendants was returned in Crawford county common pleas court at Bu- cyrus yesterday in the $22,500 suit brought by Charles Barringer, of Marion, against John Reeder and Howard Ward, of Bucyrus.

Barringer was injured in an auto- mobile accident Feb. 4, 1923, on the Marion-Bucyrus rd. He was forced because of car trouble to leave his machine on the road and go to Bu- cyrus for aid. Howard Ward, gar- age owner, sent John Reeder, driver, with Barringer to the scene of the trouble, evidence showed. The taxi was being driven without lights in a fog, it is said, and the accident, in which Barringer was injured, oc- curred.

Barringer brought suit for dam- ages and the defense attorneys claimed that Barringer, as passenger and the one who hired the services of the taxi, should have ordered the driver to use his lights. A directed verdict for the defendants was asked.

Grant E. Mouser, Marion attorney, represented Reeder, one of the de- fendants.

The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History

-with Marvelous New Bodies by Fisher!

Only a short time has elapsed since The Outstanding Chevrolet was introduced—but already it has swept on to one of the greatest triumphs in automotive history. Never before has the American public so overwhelmingly endorsed a new Chevrolet—for never before has there been provided, at prices within the reach of everyone, such a generous measure of beauty, comfort, performance and dependability!

New Fisher Bodies

The marvelous new bodies by Fisher—longer, lower and roomier, with all closed models equipped with adjustable driver's seat that may be moved forward and back for proper driving comfort—represent one of the most valuable contributions ever made to motor car comfort and beauty. The hood streams back from the voguish new chromium plated radiator in straight, unbroken lines and blends flawlessly into the body contours. Body mouldings divide at the cowl line—giving a paneled effect to the cowl and hood that is both distinctive and pleasing. Concave front pillars lengthen and smarten the profile. And distinctive new Ternstedt hardware lends a final touch of custom elegance.

New Six-Cylinder Motor

The great new six-cylinder valve-in-head engine was developed from more than a hundred motors that were built and tested over a period of four years by Chevrolet engineers. Not only does it develop 32% more power than any previous Chevrolet engine . . . not only is it sensationally faster and swifter in acceleration—but it performs with a smoothness and quietness of operation that are almost unbelievable in a low-priced automobile.

It idles along in the traffic line with remarkable ease and quietness. It leaps ahead at the signal light like an arrow from a bow. It takes the hills, no matter how steep, with truly astounding ease. And it delivers this amazing performance with an economy averaging better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline!

New Comfort and Handling Ease

But sensational as this performance is—it is matched in impressiveness by the marvelous comfort and handling ease that have been engineered into the chassis. The heavy, rigid, channel steel frame extends beyond the entire length of the body and rests on four semi-elliptic shock-absorber springs—set parallel with the road. The front springs are 36 inches long and the rear springs 54 inches—while all spring shackles are equipped with Alemite fittings. The steering mechanism is designed with ball bearings throughout, with complete lubrication at all points of contact. Brake pedals are correctly spaced for easy and safe manipulation. The two-beam headlights are controlled by a foot button located on the floor boards. And a slender, flat-type steering wheel fits snugly into the hands.

If I Were A Man

BY JILL

I WOULDN'T take a woman's devotion for granted. Even a wife appreciates a kind word once in awhile, and if I don't give it to her, someone else will. I wouldn't expect her to consult me about all her plans—and never consult her about mine.

I'd think occasionally of something I might do for her, instead of something she might do for me, and I'd remember that a box of candy or a judicious piece of flattery does more toward keeping a woman satisfied than an unmortgaged home fat savings.

I'd bear in mind my own shortcomings instead of dwelling always upon hers, and I'd ask myself occasionally if I really deserved the devotion I was getting, and what was I giving in exchange?

If I Were A Girl

BY JACK

I WOULD not take a half hour to say good-bye. There's nothing a man hates more than standing in the doorway fumbling with his hat while the Girl Friend thinks of a half dozen thrilling bits of gossip she just MUST impart before she leaves.

I'd tell all the latest scandal while I was comfortably seated in the drawing-room, and I wouldn't make the move to go unless I really meant it. When I said goodbye I'd stick to it, and when I got on my wraps I'd depart. I'd do my talking sitting down and use my feet for locomotion, and I wouldn't get peevish if the Boy Friend whispered tensely: "For heaven's sake, let's GO."

One farewell is plenty—any more are anti-climatic.

Meditations OF A Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

The Spice of Love

THE average man can never remember just what it was he said that gave a woman the right to go ahead and marry him.

What keeps this old world going 'round is woman's undying faith that love will last, in the face of her knowledge that nothing else ever does.

The supreme feminine art consists in flattering a man just enough to make him think that he could be happy with you—and not enough to make him think that you couldn't be happy without HIM.

No really satisfactory way has ever been discovered to warm over a broiled steak, a cold baked potato, or a cooled romance.

Even when a husband talks only in golf, radio or monosyllables, it is sort of comforting to have something alive sitting around the house evenings.

There are still men in this innocent world who believe that the liquor with the fancy label is "just off the boat," and women who believe that the lover with the fancy line will "stay put, THIS time."

The woman who appeals to a man's vanity may intrigue him; the woman who appeals to his senses may allure him; but it's the woman who appeals to his imagination that gets him.

The man who plunges recklessly into a love affair is usually the first to swim out beyond the breakers where you can't catch him.

None so blind as those who are looking at another woman.

Daphne

An Unusual Romance of Love and Sacrifice

BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR

DAPHNE told Miss Viola, and Miss Viola told all the roomers. It was hard to feel romantic about anyone as flippant, and long-legged and loud-mouthed as Flora, but a wedding is a wedding, and a bride is a bride.

"He seems real nice," Viola said. "I didn't get a good look at his face, but he's an elegant dresser. I was always kind of partial to Webb and Wunzer's, I get the goods for my plum-colored broadcloth there . . . Flora's so good natured, I wouldn't be surprised if she arranged a discount for me, her husband being one of the owners and all—"

"Husband!" snorted Mrs. Halliday who was sitting on the couch in the kitchen waiting for the ironing board Viola was using. "She may talk husband, but I wouldn't count my chickens before they were hatched if I was you, Miss Viola. Many a slip between the cup and the lip—"

But when Flora came bounding in, fortunately making so much noise that they heard her coming, and could stop talking about her in time, even Mrs. Halliday's doubts vanished.

"Very pretty I'm sure," he said graciously when Flora held out a freckled and rather grimy hand on which blazed an immense blue-white diamond surrounded with smaller diamonds, and sapphires for them all to admire. "Though of course I'm old fashioned enough to like a solitaire myself!"

Mrs. Spellman, washing out "a few little things" on the back porch came in, hastily wiping her hands on her apron. "Don't look at me," she panted. "I haven't had a chance to clean up all day, the time just flies so, I was washing out Spellman's underwear, the laundry shrinks them so he can't hardly . . . Gracious, Miss McCardle! My stars above, it's so big it looks almost like a novelty, though of course I don't doubt for one minute—"

"Webb and Wunzer giving a imitation?" Miss Viola cried indignantly. "Well, I should say that there was one concern that could certainly afford the genuine article, I should certainly say end—"

But Flora only laughted good naturedly, and twiddled it on her finger. "Yep, it's real, all right. I only hope I'm not driven to hock it before the wedding day!"

She was still laughing when she was back in her own room with only Daphne for an audience. "Did you see Halliday's face? She can't believe he's really going to marry me, with a wedding ring, and a marriage license and everything. I think I'll have to invite her . . . no I couldn't stand it, as a blushing bride I'll be nervous enough without her to . . . Say, by the way, Daphne, didn't you tell me Ralph McNevitt was supposed to be engaged to your half-sister, or stepsister or whatever she is?"

"I heard that he was, Daphne said without looking up. She had thought about it so much that it didn't shock her any more. It was like thinking about dying—something that would happen, but not very soon—not yet, oh not for a long time yet—

"Well this may not have anything to do with it—" Flora's shrewd blue eyes were glued on Daphne, "but . . . did you ever heard of Avery Woodward, the artist?"

"No, I never did. Oh Flora, do you mean that he—that he likes her, and and that maybe—"

"Maybe is right," Flora agreed. "You hear some funny gossip in a job like mine. Somebody is always telling you something, not knowing that you're personally interested. Anyway this Woodward is a notorious bum, always living off somebody, and I heard that he moved out of the Beecher place, bag and baggage about six months ago right in the middle of a portrait he was making of Mrs. Beecher—she was simply furious—and he's around all the art exhibits and bolshevik lectures with this Crystal Garroty, and if you ask me she's paying his board bill or he wouldn't be wasting his time on her!"

"But Crystal has always had lots of men friends! Everybody admires her, she's so pretty. Ralph and—"

"Ralph and that kind, but not Avery Woodward's kind if I know my onions. This Woodward has brains, even if he won't use them; and that Garroty girl hasn't had a thought since the battle of Pharsalus. Either she's supporting him, or she's bluffed him into thinking she going to—I know him—besides it's common gossip. This Beecher woman has been talking, everybody knows it. I heard it a long time ago but I didn't say anything until I was sure it was the same Garroty."

"Crystal wouldn't support anybody," Daphne giggled, "so that much is wrong anyway. Still, if she is seen everywhere with him I don't see how she can be engaged to Ralph. I don't believe she is. I never did completely believe it, because he never said so, and I really don't trust my stepmother—"

"Well don't build your hopes too high," Flora cut in quickly, almost wishing she hadn't said anything. It would be such a cruel shame to disappoint the girl all over again.

But Daphne's eyes were shining, her color high. "Don't you see, Flora? Don't you see? It proves what I said all along, that Crystal doesn't really love Ralph—she wouldn't go around with this artist if she did. And if she doesn't love him he's bound to see it sooner or later, and—"

"And come back to you." Flora finished for her. "He may, of course, but don't count on it, honey. Men are pretty dumb about some things."

"Even the dumbest man would know if a girl didn't love him. You can tell—anybody can tell—"

Flora twiddled the diamond on her finger.

"Besides, I don't think any girl would marry one man when she preferred another—not even Crystal—and she certainly must like this other one if she goes with him, and he's poor, because she never looked at anyone before. That would be contemptible!"

"Think so?" Flora smiled. But only her lips were smiling. Her eyes were not.

"Flora, of course! Why, there wouldn't be anything worse!"

"No? Well, maybe not. I don't know." She passed a glittering hand across her eyes. "Run along, and let me get 40 winks before the prospective bridegroom arrives, will you? Us engaged girls are always so darned busy—"

"Did she say when was the wedding?" old Mrs. Hinckle wanted to know when she met Daphne coming down the stairs.

At the magic word, wedding, Viola pushed aside the green velour curtains, and came into the hall. "May day would be nice," she volunteered. I could thing up some cute period style, that wouldn't make her look too gawky—"

"And I can think how to get the room rented," the old lady grumbled, making tracks for the kitchen. "Nobody else cares, only me . . . Ach Gott!"

"You'll be the next one!" Viola teased, poking Daphne with a fat forefinger.

Daphne blushed. "I guess I won't move in a hurry."

The old lady, almost at the kitchen door, turned and sighed again. "It don't go by ones," she said in her harsh, guttural voice, and leaning there in the dim light, supporting her weight on the floor mop, she might have been one of the witches in Macbeth about to ride off on a broomstick. "I don't know, sometimes I have funny dreams . . . First it was Carlsen had your room, she went on her vacation, then I knew . . . I know wher she went. Now McCardle goes to get married, next time downstairs again, I know, I guess I don't sleep much, I dream sometimes—"

"Ma! Did you dream Daphne was getting married? Ma—tell us!"

"Never mind," the old lady mumbled, "I guess I didn't say much," and banged the door behind her.

You never can tell. Even the last young man can't always catch up with his good intentions.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

THIS was Wednesday. And when me and Jubilee woke up and I had pushed him out of bed and made a light and got the rope from under the board in the attick and opened up the window the snow on the window sill almost filled up the window.

When I had let Jubilee down in the still darkness and shut the window and hid the rope I felt like I had a cold, and I wanted to blow my nose but it was too tender. So I looked at it in the piece of broken looking glass I have got nailed to my wall, and if the Lost Bag of Tripe could have seen it he would of been proud of it.

It had got done snowing when I got out to empty the ashes, and Jubilee was running around in rings almost out of sight in the deep snow, and Hopper and Peanuts and Nibs were there before I got done milking, and they got the slays which we keep in our barn and said they would meet me on the hill when I had fed my face; and then I heard some more coming and I hustled in so as to get out quick again.

When I got my face fed and had swiped a couple of pancakes for Jubilee I went to the barn to get my slay and they had tooken it with them, so me and Jubilee skedaddled to the hill and Younins and Feeble and all of them were there, and my slay was setting there at the top of the hill all ready to slide down, and I was going to jump on it but Hopper was standing by it and he kinda batted his eyes and wiggled his ears, and I stepped acrosst the sled and went to ast him what was the matter, and just then someone came running and jumped on the slay and away down the hill he went like a streek.

I saw it was the Lost Bag of Tripe, and I was going to start after him, when all at once him and the slay stopped and turned over and he came down on the slide so hard he went "Whump!" There was a long rope tied to my slay and buried in the snow and tied to the tree at the top of the hill, and the bunch was thinking how much fun it would be to see me do a flop, and I would have done it too if it hadn't been for Hopper. When I went to go down the hill the Lost Bag of Tripe hollered that I was a dirty crook and skun out acrosst the pond, and I let him go. He thought he would rush up and take a slide and skin out, and he got fooled.

We all went back to my house and went in our kitchen to get warm and kicked snow off of our shoes all over everything, and Annabelle Lee put her foot against the table and pushed her high chair over and the back of it bit my grandfather's foot, and he began to say tings and hang onto his corn, and my ant began to get after him, so we skun out, leaving my mother trying to make Annabelle Lee stop crying.

Nothing happened at school. I couldn't catch the Lost Bag of Tripe.

Madge and Lillian Prepare To Speed the Parting Guests

LILLIAN and I exchanged questioning glances as Samuel Brixton made a casual and apparently unembarrassed exit, following his defeat in the matter of the twenty thousand dollar payment to Marion.

"Can he possibly be as nonchalant as he appears?" I asked.

"Yes, every whit," she answered with a smile. "He has a skin like a rhino, and besides, you must remember he's just saved twenty thousand dollars. He's made the grand gesture, for Helena's sake, he can tell her it's all right, and know that I will back him up, and he's that much ahead. As for that 'release' thing he wanted me to sign, I don't believe he ever thought of that himself. His half-brother evidently judged me by himself, and wanted to make sure I wouldn't come down on Sam for more when I once accepted the twenty thousand for Marion."

I looked at her in astonishment.

"So that's what you think the release meant?" I asked.

"Pretty nearly," she answered with a disregard for the possible ramifications of Charles Owen's plans which made me yearn to shake her soundly. "Of course Owen and he may have something else up their sleeves—probably Sam owed Tom more than twenty thousand and wanted to protect himself from any possible demand in the future. If he only knew how safe he was! I'm sure Marion will feel the way I do about it, when I muster up courage to tell her."

"Don't tell her," I advised earnestly. "If Mr. Brixton is sincere in his desire to give her the money, it will be time enough to tell her about it when she comes of age. And we've done the only possible thing now, in protecting her interests by refusing to sign such a release as that was."

"Thanks to you," Lillian said gratefully. "If Sam had turned on the tremolo stop about Helena sufficiently, and I had been alone, I think I'd have signed that thing and not taken the money."

"You would have done no such thing," I told her scornfully, but secretly I was not so sure. The careless manner in which she had voiced the very theory I held—that the debt of Samuel Brixton to Marion's father far exceeded the sum he had offered—showed me how indifferent she was to the whole financial side of the transaction. She abhorred Brixton, and absurdly dreaded Marion's association with Ronald because he was Sam's stepson, but there was in her mind no much haunting fear as mine held—that Brixton and his half-brother had some scheme in mind for victimizing herself and her daughter.

She rose from the couch, and coming over to me, laid her arm across my shoulders affectionately.

"You bully old anchor!" she said, then moved away hurriedly as is her wont when she has shown a flash of emotion. But her tone and the look in her eyes were worth a volume of an ordinary woman's protestations of gratitude.

"I suppose we had better go up and speed our parting guests," she said, and hastily assenting, I went with her into the hall, where we met Helena Brixton and Charles Owen just coming from the tennis courts followed by the four young people who evidently had just finished the disputed game.

Just before we reached them, I saw Ronald draw his mother aside and say something to her in a voice almost inaudible. She nodded brightly, and smiled as if much pleased, and then Ronald crossed swiftly to us and looked appealingly at Lillian.

"May I speak to you a second, Mrs. Underwood?" he asked boyishly.

"No matter how you slice it or eat it, it's still—

ON THURSDAY RADIO BILL

Featured in Program

A musical symposium of life on and about a plantation in the old Mississippi river district in the days of log cabins, sugar cane and corn hunts will be heard over the WEAF network at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night when a program entitled "Down on the Old Plantation" is presented as the Coward Comfort hour.

The musical program includes some of the old favorites of the negro ditties, together with some of the numbers made famous by the old time minstrel shows. "Where the Sweet Magnolias Grow" by Von Tilzer, "Little Old Log Cabin," by Hays; Denton's "Floating Down the Mississippi" and "Dancing on the Levee," by McKenna, are a few of the selections to be heard.

What artists seek in models who pose for pictures of typical American beauties will be explained at 8 o'clock Thursday night when James Montgomery Flagg, noted illustrator and portrait painter, speaks over the WJZ network of the NBC system as a feature of the Lehn and Fink Serenade.

Christmas music of the early eighteenth century will be played by Milady's Musicians during the broadcast through the WJZ network stations of the NBC system at 9 o'clock Thursday night.

The old carols of England, Naples, Provence, Holland and France will be heard.

Beethoven's "Country Dance" and Tarenghi's "Serenade" to be played by the Halsey, Stuart ensemble, are features of the broadcast of this group to be heard over the WEAF network at 10 o'clock Thursday night.

...rague Players Score ...otable Success With ...rtrayal of "Lightnin'"

...entation of Famous Comedy-Drama as Second Number of High School Entertainment Course Wins Enthusiastic Approval of Capacity Audience

BY HALLIE HOUCK
...arion Star Staff Writer

...htnin'," the play which scored an outstanding success on Broadway several years ago, again scored when presented by the Sprague Players last night before a capacity audience in the Star auditorium as the second of the Harding high school senior lecture and entertainment course numbers this year.

The comedy, written by Winchell Smith and Frank Bacon and produced on Broadway with John Golden in the leading role consists of three acts, two scenes in the first act and a prologue.

"Lightnin'" Bill Jones, played by Herbert Sprague, received rounds of applause for his clever lines and technique in carrying out his role of a man who has a liking for the wine cup.

The story centers around the efforts of Raymond Thomas, a crooked lawyer, played by Earl R. White, who endeavors to buy the Calivada hotel from the Jones' for the Golden Gate Stock Co., of which he is the unknown head. In return he will give the proprietors shares in his fake company.

Love Theme

John Marvin, played by J. Russel Beachler, who is in love with Mildred Buckley, played by Margaret Oertli finally proves to the court and the judges that Thomas is a swindler and wins his lady love. In the course of the play Mrs. Bill Jones, played by Thelma Slack, sues "Lightnin'" for divorce, but changes her mind upon evidence in the court room and everything ends happily for the Jones family and John Marvin.

The prologue of the play is laid in John Marvin's cabin in Nevada, and prepares the audience for the unwinding of the plot in the next three acts. Act one, scenes one and two, are laid in the Calivada hotel, owned by the Jones. The state boundary line of California and Nevada pass through the center of the hotel. This state line affords several amusing incidents for the acts. Act two is laid in a court-room in Reno, Nev., six months later, when divorce is granted Mrs. Margaret Davis, a comedy part played by Floy Sprague, wife of Mr. Sprague, who in the afternoon of the same day marries the judge, Lemuel Townsend, portrayed by Neil Smith.

In this same court-room Mrs. Jones sues for divorce and withdraws her plea, and Thomas is shown up as a thief and a scoundrel. Act three is back in the hotel in the evening after the trial. The judge and his new wife are happy, Mr. and Mrs. Jones are reunited and John Marvin and Mildred Buckley promise to marry. All this happiness has as its background Lightnin's determined efforts to do the right thing.

Rodney Harper played the part of a lumberman and Fred Peters is a hotel clerk at the Calivada. The play was one of the most successful ever presented here on a lyceum course, despite the fact that several of the roles were "doubled" and many of the lines omitted. The important lines, and the sequences that made the play the fine entertainment which it is, were all kept in the performance given last night.

Preceding the performance between the acts, and at the close of the play, music was furnished by the Harding High school orchestra under the direction of T. R. Evans.

GIRL FRIGHTENED, RESISTS HOLDUP MAN

Cashier Foils Bandit's Attempted Robbery of Columbus Theater

COLUMBUS Dec 19—Because she was "too scared to move" Miss Margaret Roberts comely cashier at Loew's Broad theater here, received congratulations today on foiling a holdup attempt at the show house last night.

Miss Roberts was checking her receipts preparatory to putting up the 'closed' sign. A youth, well dressed to the point of nonchalance lounged up to the window, shoved a pistol through the glass enclosure and drawled 'Give me that money or I'll shoot.'

The cashier was scared"—so scared she instinctively shoved the pile of bills into a tin box under the counter.

The bandit glared—the cashier stirred.

He didn't say anything more, and I didn't say anything either, I was too frightened. Then some people came out of the theater and he turned and ran," Miss Roberts said.

No trace was found of the would be holdup man.

KIDNAP GIRL

Forced Into Automobile by Six Men and Attacked

CHICAGO Dec 19 — A young woman stumbled into a Chicago police station today and told of being forced into an automobile by six men taken to the rear room of a saloon and attacked. She was scratched and bruised and on the verge of collapse.

The girl, Miss Pamagine Moore said she was walking to her home when a car pulled up to the curb and several men leaped out.

"One of them clapped a hand over my mouth to stifle my screams. The girl told police. They dragged me into the car and drove several blocks to the rear of a building.

"They dragged me into a room that was vacant save for several tables and chairs. I fainted. When I came to one of the men was pouring whisky down my throat."

A half hour later, police stormed a restaurant near where the girl was seized and arrested six men, two of whom Miss Moore identified as among her abductors. They gave their names as David Nicoletti, 21, and Joseph Minnelli, 28.

All were taken to the police station for investigation.

PACKARD

NOW BUILDS THREE STRAIGHT-EIGHT MODELS

PRICED FROM

$2435 to $5985

AT DETROIT

PACKARD pioneered the straight-eight motor car in America. That fact is well known.

Now, like the vast majority of all multi-cylinder car manufacturers the world over, Packard has standardized the eight-in-line power plant. Every current Packard model is now a Packard Eight. That, too, is well known.

But what is not generally appreciated is that Packard builds three complete lines of Packard Eight cars—the Standard Eight, the Custom Eight and the De Luxe Eight.

The Packard cars in each line are fundamentally alike in engineering design, in quality of materials and craftsmanship, in the characteristic beauty of their body lines. Packard has but one standard. The models in the three lines differ in size, in detailed refinements of body embellishment and in the degree of individuality available to the purchaser in color, upholstery and body styles. Today there is a Packard Eight suited to the requirements of every man or woman who seeks more than mere transportation in a motor car.

The Packard Standard Eight

The new Packard Standard Eight is a powerful, fast and luxurious car, built on two popular chassis lengths—126 inches and 133 inches. The acceleration and smoothness so long associated with the Packard Eight is refined and enhanced in this new car. Every new feature including the unique Packard Shock Absorbing System is found on the Standard models.

The Packard Custom Eight

The improved Packard Custom Eight is offered in but one wheelbase—140 inches. Packard Custom models are more powerful, more smoothly flexible than ever before. The famous Packard straight-eight motor, with its nine bearing crankshaft, has been developed and improved to a new standard of performance. A wide range of choice in colors and upholstery is available in this fine and luxurious car.

REVOLT MAY ASSUME REAL PROPORTIONS

Afghan Government Is Reported Trying To Raise Paid Army

LONDON, Dec. 19—Although the extent of the reported revolt against the Afghan government still remained obscure today, dispatches from India indicated the uprising might assume serious proportions.

According to a Bombay dispatch to the Daily Mail, the Afghan government is now trying to raise a mercenary army to quell the rebels. It is understood in Bombay that Afghanistan's standing army of 35,000 is partly disaffected due to insufficient pay and hence is not rendering the government its full support.

Fighting between rebels and supporters of the government in the vicinity of Kabul, the Afghan capital, was reported today in a Daily Mail dispatch from Lahore. According to this dispatch, the rebels were having the better of the fighting, inflicting casualties upon the loyal supporters of King Amanullah.

A Karachi dispatch to the Daily Express today alleged that the Afghan army had received no pay in three months. This dispatch also intimated that Amanullah had used funds raised for the army to defray the expenses of his recent European trip.

IZE FIVE CASES OF "DOPE" ON SHIP

ernment Narcotic Agents Spurred on by Latest Coup

EW YORK, Dec. 19—Spurred by latest coup which resulted in the ire of drugs valued at from three five million dollars, government otic agents hoped to uncover fur- the evidence today in their spectacular drive against the international "dope" ring believed to have been financed by Arnold Rothstein, slain gambler.

The latest smashing blow struck against the drug traffic was the seizure of five cases of cocaine and morphine smuggled in aboard the French liner Rochambeau and disguised as "scrubbing brushes." United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle placed the value of the drugs at $4,000,000, and other estimates ran higher. The seizure was the largest ever made in this country.

The latest of the ramifications of the ring has soared even the narcotic agents. On Dec. 7 in a raid on the Grand Central terminal here, agents found two trunks containing two million dollars' worth of narcotics and another shipment was seized in Chicago.

All three shipments were made by the same gang according to Tuttle. The checks to the two trunks seized here were found on Joseph Unger, friend of Rothstein who was arrested near Buffalo as he was speeding to Chicago aboard the Twentieth Century Limited. And the Rochambeau shipment, Tuttle said, was seized on information found in the "little black book" discovered on Unger's person.

SPRINGFIELD, Dec. 19—Two men are under arrest here today for questioning in connection with a blast which wrecked a two-story rooming house last night. Twelve persons were in the dwelling at the time of the explosion, all escaped without serious injury.

Charles Murphy, 37, and William Garlough, 57, are the men under arrest. According to police, dynamite was placed in an unused furnace directly beneath the room occupied by the estranged wife of Murphy. Mrs. Murphy was not at home and could not be located at an early hour today. Buildings in many sections of the downtown district were shaken by the blast, and in some instances window panes were broken.

HOOVER AND PARTY ENJOY RELAXATION

Board Utah for Trip to Rio De Janiero; Group Is Fatigued

ABOARD U. S. S. UTAH, (Via Arlington, Va., Radio Station), Dec. 19—With the battleship Utah steaming steadily up the coast of southern Brazil this morning, President-elect Hoover and the other of his Latin-American "good-will" party today enjoyed the first of three days of relaxation ahead of them before Rio De Janeiro is reached Friday.

Although no one in the party is showing any ill-effects, the 10 strenuous days of continual receptions and traveling since the landing upon South American soil at Valparaiso have resulted in normal fatigue, however, and the rest will benefit everyone.

The Utah is due at Rio De Janeiro at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon and is scheduled to leave Monday. In view of the fact that this may be the last visit of the Hoover party's tour, another day may be added to the visit so that Christmas may be spent ashore.

Real Sea-Travelers

Everyone of the party is now a thorough sea-traveler. Consequently, adjustment to the new quarters aboard the Utah was almost instantaneous. Two hours after the ship left Uruguay, the normal ship-life interrupted when the party left the Maryland at Valparaiso, was again resumed.

Although the Utah is entirely unlike the Maryland in design, it promises equal if not better comfort for the entire party. Mr. Hoover spent much time inspecting various parts of the ship and acquainting himself with interesting details.

Movies on Deck

The president-elect and his wife saw themselves in motion pictures shown on deck under a bright moon and starry sky.

The movies had been taken by the Andean Film Corp. They depicted Mr. Hoover's arrival at Valparaiso and the crowds which greeted him when he visited Santiago.

There was also an animated cartoon showing the wonderful cordiality of the Chilean reception. The show ended with a fadeout of the president-elect, showing him smiling broadly.

GAINS 25 POUNDS IN FIVE WEEKS— LAUDS KONJOLA

Fifteen Years of Stomach Trouble and Nervousness Yield Quickly to Amazing Powers of New Medicine

MR. F. N. BAILEY

Remarkable as it may seem, Konjola appears to be at the very summit of its powers in those obstinate cases that for years have defied every attempt to relief; that have resisted every medicine and treatment tried.

This is proved in thousands of cases like that of Mr. F. N. Bailey, 737 West Mulberry street, Lancaster, who said:

"For fifteen years I had stomach trouble and nervousness, and for years I could not get to sleep before one o'clock in the morning. My food did not digest, and gas, bloating and pain followed every meal. I spit up bits of undigested food and hot liquid. Many times I had to get up in the night because of my kidneys. In all these years I never ceased doctoring and trying every medicine and treatment recommend. Not a thing helped me. I heard and read so much about this new Konjola that I decided to try it. And what a surprise I had! In five weeks—and I took just four bottles—all my stomach and kidney troubles were over. My nerves were calm and my appetite came back. I feel fine all through, and awake eager to do the day's work. Just think of the suffering and expense of fifteen years of illness I could have escaped had I tried Konjola."

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices obtained from mineral springs which strengthen the stomach, kill poisons and prevent it from souring, while other juices of the Konjola combination act directly on the kidneys, driving out the poisons which cause backache, rheumatic pains, sciatica, lumbago, dizziness, nervousness, sleeplessness, etc. Konjola is sold in Marion at Sharar's Pharmacy, in Waldo at Waldo Pharmacy, in Prospect at Prospect Pharmacy, in Caledonia at Caledonia Pharmacy, in Morral at Morral Pharmacy, in Bucyrus at Bucyrus Pharmacy, in Galion at Galion Pharmacy, in Mt. Kenton Council Moves to Solve Auto Traffic Problem

FIRE ZONE RULE IS FIXED IN ORDINANCE

Kenton Officials Aim To Establish Effective Traffic Regulations

INSTRUCT POLICE

Elimination of Double Parking One of Steps Taken by Councilmen

KENTON, Dec. 19—First steps in the movement to eliminate automobile congestion at the scene of fires was taken by Kenton city council Tuesday night when they passed an ordinance under suspension of the rules, authorizing the creation of fire zones.

Instructions to police officials to curb common violations of traffic laws in the city were also issued.

Under terms of the fire zone ordinance, the fire chief is empowered to set up a zone about the scene of a fire and persons driving machines inside the "dead line" are subject to arrest and upon conviction, to a fine ranging from $5 to $50.

The zone limits are to be designated by signs to be carried on the fire trucks. Action of council followed complaint of firemen that persons driving their autos too near the fire scene hampered and handicapped them in their work.

One of the common traffic law violations which council seeks to stop is that of double parking in the uptown business district and of parking cars too near fire plugs.

Police were asked by the legislative group to eliminate the double parking habits and to prevent old cars being allowed to stand along thoroughfares fo any length of time. It was pointed out that in some instances unserviceable cars are blocked up and left along the streets hindering traffic.

"There is no necessity for double parking "George W. Cox, council president said, "and steps must be taken to stop it." There is a possibility that council in the near future will pass rules governing and restricting parking on certain streets in the uptown district.

PARKING TIME LIMIT SEEN AS NECESSITY

Whysall, Auto Club President, Favors Definite Restrictions

Marion Automobile club and president-elect of the Marion Chamber of Commerce, looks upon the ban of parking in the business district as a possible development of the future. While this would probably settle the question Mr. Whysall believes that it would not be fair to the merchant or motorist either, to make it unlawful to park a car in the business district.

Favors Time Limit

As an alternative to an absolute prohibition of parking Mr. Whysall favors a short time limit for parking in the business district. He would consider 15 minutes ample time to leave an automobile in one position in the uptown section.

As long as the city is to permit automobiles to park in the uptown streets Mr. Whysall favors parallel parking. He points out what he believes to be a fallacy in the claims made for the diagonal system. Mr. Whysall holds that instead of bringing more people to stores and shops, diagonal parking will simply bring a few more automobiles to stand along the curb for hours at a time.

The parking problem within the last few weeks has come to be one of the much discussed questions among merchants and business and professional men as well as among city officials.

Merkel's View

C. E. Merkel, president of the Marion Savings Bank Co. and former city councilman, has this to say;

"Every little while some few men want to change the parking system. One hardly has time to get familiar with the parking rules until some change is made, causing innocent people to pay fines for violating the parking ordinances.

"The less change in parking the better. It should be settled one way or another and leave it alone.

"We suggest that in place of a few men trying to solve the question that it be left up to the council, or better still put it up to a vote of the people at some general election and let them decide.

"Merchants are more interested in providing the most space possible for parking in front of their business and make their customers feel that they can have all the freedom possible, rather than driving away trade by having the streets clear for the benefit of a few speeders. Merchants paying high rent are entitled to some consideration and people coming to Marion should be made to feel that they are welcome.

"There is no argument as to what method of parking will provide space for the largest number of cars; there is no question as to the most convenient way of entering a parking space; there is no dispute as to the difference in time it takes to park, the damage done to cars by bumping into the other cars trying to get out when cars are close in front and rear with brakes set.

"I see no reason for changing diagonal parking to parallel parking. Only a few side, narrow streets need parallel parking."

ZILLICK APPEAL IS DISMISSED BY COURT

Judges Rule No Debatable Constitutional Questions Involved in Suit

(Special to The Star)

COLUMBUS, Dec. 19—The appeal filed on behalf of Harry Zillick, Galion bank robber, was dismissed today by the Ohio Supreme Court. The court also held that no debatable constitutional question was involved, and sustained a motion by counsel for the state to dismiss Zillick's petition in error, filed as of right.

Zillick is now serving time in Ohio state penitentiary for complicity with Wilbur Haud in the robbery of the Commercial Bank at Galion, in June, 1927, involving the round sum of $175,000. He was removed to the pen Aug. 28, this year, for a term of from 12 to 25 years.

Zillick was located in Toledo following an extensive hunt by Toledo and Bucyrus police after the announcement of the court of appeals that it had found no error in the action of the lower courts in convicting Zillick of complicity in the robbery. Zillick jumped his bond of $25,000 furnished by H. N. Oberlander and George Rinsel, but was later captured in Toledo and returned to the Bucyrus jail.

Zillick, whose home was in Toledo, was 40 years of age. He is now No. 50,076 in the penitentiary.

BARN AND CONTENTS DESTROYED BY FIRE

$4,000 Loss Reported at Biddle Farm on Harding Highway

The blaze was discovered by a small son of George Swartz, tenant on the farm, when he left the home for a pail of water. He immediately notified a group of men engaged nearby loading hogs for shipment.

A large quantity of hay and corn in the shock was destroyed, together with many farm implements, including planters, plows, binders and a hay baller.

A valuable hog and several small ones also died in the blaze.

Opportunity knocks more than once at everyone's door

No age limit on success if you keep fit

PEOPLE used to think that if you passed up one chance to make good, you'd never have another. That if you hadn't made your mark by the time you were 40, you never would. "That's all bunk," people say today.

There's many a man who'll tell you he was past 50 when he made his first big success. Their experience runs something like this.

"I'd been going through life, always just missing out on everything. Worked like a dog, too. But never seemed to get anywhere.

"It was a doctor who put me wise to myself. Told me not to blame it on luck. That the trouble was with me—right inside myself.

"He recommended Nujol. I took it for three months. Never missed a day. And, say, I began to feel like a younger brother myself. Decided there was life in the old dog yet. Still time to make good. When my big chance came, I was all ready, waiting to grab it."

Nujol keeps your body functioning just as Nature meant it to, under all conditions. It's a pure substance that works normally and naturally. It not only keeps an excess of body poisons from forming (we all have them) but aids in their removal. These poisons drag you down, slow you up mentally and physically, dull your whole outlook on life, make you half-hearted.

Buy a bottle of Nujol today. Your druggist carries it. Perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 26 Broadway, New York. In sealed packages only. Take it regularly for the next three months. It can't possibly upset or disagree with you (for it contains absolutely no medicine or drug). And if you're like everyone else it will do you a lot of good. A bottle of Nujol costs no more than a couple of good cigars. Aren't you willing to bet that much on yourself?

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

BY DOROTHY HERRON
Marion Star Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD—Perhaps the most pathetic figure in the Film Village these pre-Yuletide days is Noah Beery. Noah is getting along in years. He has made his as one of the highest paid "heavies" in the profession. He has saved his money, too, and today is wealthy.

But Noah, his black streaked with white, his eyes misty with disappointments, his mouth drooping pathetically, goes it is way alone. At rare intervals he dines with his partner-manager in the trout ranch venture. Sometimes, with his son, whom he worships. The lad is a husky and a pal.

Night after night. Day after day. Of loneliness. Noah and his brother Wallie don't seem to be attracted to each other. These hours of lone-wolfing are broken by work in a picture; trips to the trout ranch; time spent with his dogs.

Recently, the papers bombasted that Mrs. Beery was suing Noah for divorce. That he had chased her down the road flourishing a gun and shouting she was a goner. Noah wonders how that masterpiece was hushed. Furthermore he knew nothing about any divorce proceedings, not having been served with papers. Some time ago, his wife—they had been married 18 years—left him. She was supposed to have eloped with the chauffeur. The story was quickly hushed, for Noah had his wife brought home, put her under a doctor's care and faced the world with a game smile. The Beerys are not reconciled, though I believe they live in the same house. Noah wants neither divorce nor separation. He still hopes everything will come out all right.

Then there's Patsy Ruth Miller. Pat was very attached to her mother who passed away the day before Thanksgiving. Pat has returned to the cast of "Nightstick," now running in Los Angeles. When off the stage, however, she's a dolorous little figure in her black dress, black hat, black coat. Together with her younger brother Winston—here from Princeton—She has to help her dad recover from the tragedy that hurled at their compact family group. Oscar, as everybody calls him, is like a lost babe in the wood without his Sadie. The Millers intend moving from the large, two-story house on Crescent Drive to a smaller place.

Mabel Normand has returned to the flicker grease paint. Yeah, she has. Mabel hustled over to the M-G-M lot 'tother day to make a "surprise" Christmas movie of herself to send to hubby, Lew Cody. Lew will be in London during the holidays touring in a vaudeville sketch which Mabel is presenting! That Mabel gal took to camera trotting with a verve that recalled the old days when she made 'em chuckle. She still has the sweetest walk in or out of captivity. The Normand one-reeler goes hot-footin' it to Lew, and with a bit of luck will reach him with Santa Claus' arrival in John Bull's country.

Saw Ruth Taylor sporting a gorgeous new diamond brooch. Um, it's a present but Ruth isn't sayin' from whom. . . Jack Holt came right out 'tother day and stated that his twelve-year-old son was his friend and severest critic . . . Corinne Griffith has landed in Agua Caliente for a few days via a motor jaunt to the Yosemite. Wot a great hangout wherein to forget the cinema!

BY BOB ELLIOTT

TWO teams of the Senior Sunday School basketball league were resting on their well earned laurels today, while another was nursing its lost reputation as a result of first round games played last night at the Y. M. C. A.

Trinity Baptist and Central Christian were the favorites to come through, while Epworth was the lone pre-game choice to fall, falling before the superior passing and shooting of the United Brethren quintet. Calvary, after holding a three point lead at the half way mark fell victim to a last half spurt of the Baptists. Waldo gave the Christians a busy evening and had they been a little more adept at follow shots might well have won the game.

The opener, between the Calvary and Trinity fives, saw "Watt" Merchant and his brother Bob combine to hand the East Church st. boys a 33.25 setback. Points on the losers were well distributed, Johnson and Zachman doing most of the offensive work.

AFTER running along on even terms for the first period the Christian crew slowly drew away from the Waldo team as the end of the half neared and were never again headed. Cliff Ward was easily the outstanding star for the winners with 16 points. Strine, Waldo pivot man, looked to be about the best tipoff man in the league as he rang up 14 counters. The big center, time and again, picked long shots off the backboards to score "sucker" shots.

The Epworth quintet presented a patched up lineup as they dropped a 26-23 game to the U. B. five. The Epworth team regarded as sure winners before game time was unable to cope with the fast passing and long shots of the winners. Vanderhoff, U. B. center, looked good as he tallied 13 points on five fielders and three fouls. Dick Tuttle, however, led his team in scoring with 14 points, garnered on six field goals and two free tosses.

The Epworth team looked upon favorably as champs by some fans, failed to uncork any good work at all, Adams' follow shots being the only redeeming feature of the Methodist attack. The losers defense was pathetic, the victors work-through whenever they pleased.

Rickard, Dempsey To Get Toge

EXPECT JACK WILL TRY COMEBACK FOR TITLE, MORE MONEY

May Sign To Meet Winner of Tex's Heavy Tourney Next Summer

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—It seems, according to quite a few notions today, there may be something back of all this aimless prattle among fighters who don't and fighters who won't; something back of it, they say, and that, unfortunately, it won't be a boot containing lots of foot. A surprising number of people have come to believe that Rickard soon is to announce that Mrs. Dempsey's boy, John, means to withdraw from a life of ease and refinement in order to meet the winner of Rickard's heavyweight tournament next summer.

They seem to think the announcement in question will be forthcoming within a few weeks when Rickard and Dempsey get together in Miami. A year ago, Rickard went not there to praise Dempsey but to bury him. Perhaps it is felt that, only by a return to the scene of this ceremony, may the body be properly disinterred. Anyhow, the idea that Dempsey and Rickard have reached an understanding is more than a suspicion; it amounts virtually to a conviction in some quarters.

Against many reasons why this might not happen are arrayed only three that may be said to indicate that it might and will. They are, namely, money; the chance to regain the heavyweight title; more money. Before I forget to mention the matter, it may be that money will have something to do with the young man's decision.

Dempsey Wants Title

HOWEVER, the man who can show Dempsey a slightly better than even chance of becoming champion again probably can have him back in the ring not later than immediately. John doesn't want a punch on the nose; he wants the title. Besides, he has had a punch on the nose.

The tendency of the volunteer matchmakers is to drop in with Paulino, provided the latter can be made to stand up in the interim. Personally, I have known men who couldn't even stand up in the back room. The last time I saw Paulino, he didn't look the part but, if they keep him in South America long enough, maybe they will be able to qualify him by the Tom Heeney system, which calls for the survival of the fastest or something. Anyhow, it is known that Paulino appeals to Dempsey as the kind of a guy who might be kicked around with impunity, although he doesn't wish to be particular. Bob nailed shoes will do.

John probably would be willing to go with Sharkey again, if only because he has some right to feel that he settled Sharkey's digestion a year and a half ago. I don't think John would care a whole lot about playing with Stribling and I'm sure he regards Tommy Loughran as no fit companion.

However, if he announces his retirement at this time, it may be taken for granted that he has looked over his field and decided that he has a worth-while chance with any of them. Besides, he might do worse—one fight and, if he wins it, he can go into permanent seclusion with the title.

That sort of thing is getting so common that soon it may become downright vulgar.

GOLFERS TEE OFF IN CATALINA MATCH

$2,500 in Cash Offered to Winners of Open Tournament

AVALON, SANTA CATALINA, Cal., Dec. 19—A golf goldrush got under way here today when some 50-odd divoteers teed off in the preliminary laps of William Wrigley, Jr.'s first annual $2,500 Catalina open championship.

Alfred Norton of Parsons, Kas., Bob Shave of Aurora, Portage county, Ohio, and Joe Brotheron of the Rancho country club comprised one of the first three-somes in today's test laps.

Scores today and tomorrow will not be counted in the grand total which will decide the champion and the winners of the $2,500 in cash offered by the chewing gum magnate. The preliminary laps were made necessary due to the fact that Avalon course consists of only nine holes.

Walter Hagen, Leo Diegel, Bill Melhlhorn, Tommy Armour and practically all of the other "big guns" of professional gold who have entered the tournament will not be required to play in the opening competition.

They will be seen in action on Friday.

Sharkey Charges Rickard With Managing Fighters

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—Incensed by Tex Rickard's statement that he was a "chump fighter," Jack Sharkey dispatched a scorching telegram to the promoter today in which he charged that Rickard was the real manager of most of the leading contenders of the heavyweight title.

The Boston heavyweight, who recently declined to take on Young Stribling at Miami Beach, Fla., stated Rickard offered him $60,000 to go under his management. Sharkey wound up by offering to take on Stribling, Paulino and Jack Dempsey, one after the other, in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia or Boston rings.

HOPPE WILL MEET LAYTON FOR TITLE

Match To End National Three-Cushion Billiard Tourney

CHICAGO, Dec. 19—Willie Hoppe and Johnny Layton will clash tonight for the world's three-cushion billiards title following respective victories last night over Gus Copules and Otto Reiselt. Layton will appear in the role of defending champion.

This match will be the concluding feature of the national three cushion and pocket billiards championship tournament which has been in progress here since Monday. Oddly enough, Layton and Hoppe will be re-enacting the closing struggle of the 1927 meet, which went to Layton after a hair raising battle.

The pocket billiards division of the event finds Ralph Greenleaf leading, with Frank Taberski the stumbling block that may halt his march to the championship. Greenleaf defeated Erwin Rudolph yesterday 125 to 95, in 14 innings, while Taberski was losing to Pasquale Natalie 125 to 87.

Rush of Traders For Favorites Results In Higher Prices

SIT TIGHT IS ORDER AS MONEY GOES UP

Shortage of Funds Will Not Cause Squeeze in Wall Street

STOCK UP 1-5 POINTS

Gears Hit in Briggs Manufacturing and International Nickel

BULLETIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—The motor car stocks and the coppers had a brilliant upward move today in the liveliest market in a week. Throwing aside their nervousness over the money market situation, many traders who have been "on the fence" for a week or two ventured into the market today to buy a few of their favorite stocks, while the big bulls went out to administer another thrashing to the bears.

BY W. S COUSINS

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 — Taking their cue from Tuesday's sharp run up at the close of the market, stock traders rushed in to buy the favorites this morning, and prices received another boost of from 1 to 5 points. The bullish pools in the motor car stocks, the coppers and high priced specialties were busy in "dressing up" their market pets and the gears in such issues as Briggs Manufacturing and International Nickel had a hard time following these stocks up the hill

The money rate was marked up to six per cent for call loans, and Wall Street has made up its mind not to worry so much about money market matters, particularly when the cause and effect of the tightening of the purse strings over the year-end are so well known. If everybody sits tight," there will be no squeeze in the stock market, and the banks will be crowded with money before the middle of January

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec 19—Lack of interest was again the only feature of the local grain trade Holiday dullness added to an already quiet market has resulte so far this week in a state of extreme epathy toward the market on the part of the trade and speculative interests

A sharp weakening of the December option under larger deliveries, a large increase in the Canadian visible supply and a substantial addition in available supplies as figured by Bradstreets brought a downward revision in wheat prices

Corn Erratic

Corn quotations were erratic Early selling on weakness at Buenos Aires and the favorable weather put prices down, but they bobbed up again on scattered professional buying and short covering, only to ease off later with the weak wheat market

Wheat prices finished with net losses of ½@1½c, with December the weakest, widening its spread with the May to 6¼c, as compared with 5⅝c the previous day. Corn was ¼@⅜c off at the close, oats were ⅛@½c down, and rye was ¼@½c lower Winnipeg wheat futures closed ⅜c lower

Indicative of the present dearth of interest in the grain trade are the figures on volume of trading in grain futures as compiled by the grain futures administration Since Friday the volume of sales for all grain futures has been below 25 000 000 bu a day, and though yesterday's figures are not available until today, it was estimated to be about the same

A Slow Period

Of course this is the period when trading slows up for the holidays. However, since the first of November there have been less than ten days when total sales of all grain futures exceeded the 50 000,000 bu. mark, the latter a low figure when compared with the average volume of previous years.

Deliveries of wheat on December contracts totaled 254 000 bu and there were rumors of heavier releases to come. This weakened the December future with a natural lowering of deferred prices. The increase of 15,313,000 bu. in Canadian stocks and 9,031,000 bu. in Bradstreets available proved further deterrents to activity on the constructive list.

While export sales of 50,000 bu mainly Manitobas, were reported little attention was paid to export trade. It was called generally quiet, with the expectation of a continued indifference by foreign buyers during the holiday period, a customary attitude. Broomhall credits India with having purchased 21,000,000 bu of Australian and Canadian wheat so far

While the volume of trade in corn has been running slightly over that of wheat, the lack of speculative interest in this grain is cited as the reason for its failure to accomplish sustained price advances. Another reason is found in the reported heavy feeding of low grade wheat throughout the world

Elevator Interests Buy

Further indications of export business were received yesterday, with reports of sales from Southwest markets at 7½c over May, or equal to the top price on the crop. A local observer pointed out that the fact that 30 per cent of the visible supply at Buffalo and the seaboard suggests accumulation by export interests.

Next to the lack of interest, the chief depressing factor in corn trading yesterday was that elevator interests continued to buy corn in the local market on a delivery basis and mate the deliveries, 365,000 bu being released.

In the cash market, wheat was steady, corn steady to ½c higher; oats steady to ½c lower; rye unchanged; barley steady Cars inspected were: Wheat, 32 cars; corn 181 cars; oats 26 cars; rye, 13 cars; barley, 14 cars.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Conditions remained unchanged from yesterday in retail fruit, vegetable and meat markets of the city this morning. No price changes were reported on any of these three varieties of products and no new arrivals on the markets were listed by local retailers.

Since the decided spurt in business reported here by dealers for last Saturday, sales have been continuing in fair large Consumers are still buying only in small quantities, but are buying much more frequently than during the period of several weeks when business was extremely poor on retail markets of the city

Christmas tree sales are good at the present time, although dealers in this holiday decoration state that figures have not yet even approached the season's peak On the last few days before Christmas, trees will sell very rapidly they believe.

Stocks of Christmas trees, both on the retail and wholesale markets of the city, are standing up well, both in number and quality. The present cold snap is keeping trees here in good condition.

Own Your Own Home

THE man or woman, to whose mind the word "Home" does not awaken fond and sacred memories is to be pitied.

"Home"—the cradle of infancy, the haven of childhood, the school of youth the refuge of maturity and the comfort of old age.

Around it are woven the most tender memories, the most sacred thoughts the most enjoyable experiences, the most solid comfort and the happiest of dreams.

Why water some other man's lawn? Why train vines to crawl upon walls that you do not own?

UTILITIES FILE TAX VALUATIONS

Morrow County Concerns To Pay Taxes on Approximately $4,500,000

MT. GILEAD, Dec. 19—Valuations on which the utilities of Morrow county will be obliged to pay taxes this year have been filed with County Auditor Roy Miller, totalling approximately $4,500,000 for the 21 utilities operating in the county. The addition of the valuations on the Ohio Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Western Union Telegraph Co. makes a substantial increase from last year, which was almost a million dollars less.

Railroads make up the major part of the valuations of the utilities in this county, one company having a total of $1,801,010 in two divisions here. The Ohio Associated Telephone Co. has the smallest valuation, named at $440.

Section 5. That the bonds of the City of Marion, Ohio, shall be issued in anticipation of the collection of the assessments by instalments and in an amount equal thereto.

Section 6. That the City's portion of the cost of said improvement shall be paid by the issuance of bonds in the manner provided by law; and in the event the said City is compelled to construct that portion of said improvement that is properly chargeable to The Columbus, Delaware and Marion Electric Company, the cost thereof shall be paid by the issuance of bonds as provided by law, and assessed against said Company.

Bucyrus Council Takes No Action On Order From State Health Director

Has 30 Days in Which To Form Plans for Caring for Sewage Disposal Situation in City; Attorney Asks Settlement of Accident Claims Made by Mrs. Etta Stewart

Bucyrus, Dec. 19—No action was taken on the formal order to install works or means satisfactory to the director of health, for collecting and disposing of the sewage of the city, issued from State Health Director Dr. John E. Monger, at the meeting of members of the city council last night. Definite plans will be announced at the next meeting of council as the city is given 30 days in which to take some action.

A side light was given on the "disposal plant question" when Mayor Schuler remarked that following the hearing of the Bucyrus sewage problem at Columbus, Dec. 14, he was informed that Lima, with a similar problem, had eluded orders for a disposal plant from the state health director with the result that the attorney general had found them susceptible to arrest and $500 fine for obstructing the order of the director of health.

Signed by Voters

The order made by the state director of health, for the "adoption of "means for collecting and disposing of the sewage of the city in a manner to correct and prevent the pollution was pursuant to complaint in writing of Sandusky river by such sewage" signed by 77 qualified electors of Bucyrus township and 56 electors of Dallas township which was received by the director of health, Apr. 28, 1928, from the clerk of the board of deputy state supervisors of election in Crawford county; complaints in writing from the boards of trustees of Bucyrus and Dallas township which were received at the health board's offices June 25, 1928, from the respective clerks of the boards submitted in accordance with the provisions of the general code of Ohio.

Other council business included a reading of a communication from Attorney E. J. Myers, notifing the council that his client, Mrs. Etta Stewart, who was injured Dec. 5, 1928, when she accidentally fell through a broken sewer drop on West Mary st. asks that a peaceable settlement be made, to compensate said client from injuries sustained. The matter was referred to the city solicitor after some discussion.

To Repair Walks

In a report of the finance committee, an extension of time was asked in which to redraft the ordinance concerning the salary of the city engineer, the orginial ordinance having been vetoed by Mayor Schuler at a previous meeting, because, it was written in such a way as to "open the door to misunderstanding" and possibly lead to further abuse, the mayor pointed out. The original ordinance fixed the salary of the city engineer at $1,200 per year plus four per cent of a total cost of all public improvements costing over $500.

Ordinance Number 1407, requiting that $157 be paid to City Chemist, J. R. Lower, was dopted with an ordinance regulating the erection of filling stations in the residential districts being referred to the ordinance and resolutions committee for further corrections.

City Solicitor Miller was instructed to prepare resolutions for the placing of sidewalks before n property on Park av., said walks having been in such a condition for the past several months that a resident of the street had received painful injuries, caused by a fall on said walks.
